Procurement Contracting Essentials: From Formation to Risk Management

Lise Patry, Partner – LXM LAW

Course Description:

Procurement professionals regularly finalize contracts that create binding legal obligations and long-term operational risk—often without the benefit of formal legal training. This one-day workshop provides a practical, plain-language overview of procurement contracting fundamentals, with a focus on how contracts are formed, structured, amended, and typically managed in a public sector context.

Participants will gain a working understanding of the legal principles that underpin procurement contracts, including what is required for a procurement contract to be legally binding, how procurement documents interact with final agreements, and common pitfalls that arise in day-to-day procurement activities.

The workshop will examine the typical structure of a procurement contract and key contract provisions—such as indemnities, insurance, limitation of liability, intellectual property ownership —so participants can better understand their purpose and risk implications. Through real world examples and interactive discussion, the session will emphasize how procurement contracts function as risk-allocation and governance tools.

This workshop is designed for procurement professionals who want to strengthen their contract literacy, improve risk awareness, and feel more confident navigating procurement contracts throughout the procurement lifecycle.

Learning Outcomes:

By the end of this workshop, participants will be able to:

- Understand the basic principles of contract law as they apply to procurement activities
- Identify the elements required for a binding procurement contract and recognize when legal obligations arise
- Distinguish between procurement documents and the final contract, and understand how they interact

09:45 – 10:45	 PLENARY / PLÉNIÈRE  Designing Procurement for Complexity: Lessons from Agile IT Procurement Models Lise Patry, Partner – LXM LAW  As public-sector organizations replace aging IT infrastructure, procurement professionals are increasingly tasked with designing procurements for complex IT and digital solutions. In these procurements, traditional single-stage RFPs are often ill-suited to address evolving requirements and fragmented vendor markets, which may require multiple contractual arrangements. This plenary examines how some procurement authorities have adapted their approaches through agile procurement models such as competitive dialogue, multi-phased RFx processes, vendor pre-engagement, and iterative bid refinement.

	Drawing on examples from Ontario, the federal government, and the MASH sector, the session explores how these approaches can be used to better align procurement outcomes, risk allocation, and governance in high-stakes IT procurements.

Market pressures can push suppliers to engage in risky behaviour to try to make an extra buck. In light of the federal government's push to deploy taxpayer funds rapidly in areas such as housing and defence, there has never been a better time to learn how to prevent, detect and report bid rigging in your procurement processes. In addition to learning valuable content, participants will engage in an interactive demonstration of the Competition Bureau's web-based Collusion Risk Assessment Tool that can help minimize the risk of bid-rigging. Agile Procurement in a Time of Rapid Change: Playbooks That Survive Audit Anjana Raman, Director, Program Management, Infosys Public Services Michel Tourigny, AVP, Business Head Canada, Infosys Public Services Public procurement is under pressure to deliver faster, smarter, and more resilient outcomes—without compromising compliance. This session explores how agile procurement methods can accelerate IT and digital projects while meeting trade agreement and audit requirements. Through real-world examples and interactive exercises, participants will learn how to design multi-stage RFPs, modular contracts, and collaborative vendor engagement strategies that balance speed with transparency and fairness.
